

Who is involved in running NATO Watch and where do you get your money from?

NATO Watch is run by its founder Dr Ian Davis, and is supported by a network of associates. NATO Watch operates on a small budget and currently has no formal office (we try to run NATO Watch ‘virtually’). To ensure the ability to provide independent and objective oversight and analysis, NATO Watch seeks support from private individuals and foundations in member states and worldwide. We do not accept NATO central government or defence industry funding, either directly or indirectly. We only accept funds from other governmental bodies for educational materials (as is the case with Amnesty International, for example). We welcome donations. Photo: The colour of your money by penguincakes
